GAFFNEY, S.C. — The Gaffney police chief has named a person on interest after videos surfaced on a porn site showing former female-athletes from visiting schools inside Limestone College locker rooms.

The investigation began in October 2019 when a police report was filed by a Gaffney police officer who stated that five different videos were recorded of five different female teams in the soccer locker room.

The videos were taken down from the porn sites, police said. The report said the incidents happened between September 2012 and October 2013.

On Thursday, Gaffney Police Chief Chris Skinner named Collins Brandon Murphy as a person of interest in the case.

Skinner did not say Murphy was charged in the case at Limestone College.

Skinner said Murphy was employed at Limestone College between September 2012 and October 2013. He was previously employed by Alderson Broaddus University in West Virginia, Skinner said.

A new release from Skinner said:

"Videos were discovered in 2014 in which Murphy admitted to filming, using hidden cameras, in the female locker rooms and dorm rooms on the campus of Alderson Broaddus University. Murphy was named in a civil lawsuit along with Alderson Broaddus in 2018. No criminal charges in reference to the Invasion of Privacy were filed in West Virginia due to the states Statute of Limitations. Murphy, however, was indicted on six counts of Burglary at the beginning of 2020. Murphy, who is a resident of Maryland, is currently out on bond."

Limestone College released the following statement:

"Limestone officials have confirmed that Collins Murphy was employed at the college from August 2012 until October 2014. Murphy was the Director of Intramural Sports and Summer Conferences. He was terminated immediately once Limestone College learned of the allegations made against him at Alderson Broaddus University.”

More background on the case:

All of the women were recorded without their knowledge, according to the police report. According to the police report, in all of the videos, the women can be seen showering and changing clothes.

The videos appear to have been recorded from a sink in the male locker room, the police report said.

Police said the women in the videos were on teams visiting Limestone.
